NO ACTION AT PRESENT

Sec. of War Baker Awaits
Further News From Mexico.

(Special to The Herald.)
Washington, June 22.—"We have formulated no plans and will take no action in Mexico on the present information available here. All of the facts available today regarding the battle of Carrizal are from Mexican sources. We have asked General Huerta to make every effort to get a full and complete report from Gen. Pershing. There will be no special cabinet meeting today and President Wilson has no immediate intention of going before congress."
Secretary of War Baker following a three hour conference today summed up the Mexican situation in the above statement.
"We made it very plain that there will be no haste while every official in Washington from President Wilson down seemed convinced that war with Carranza cannot be avoided in view of the acceptance of responsibility for the attack on the Americans Wednesday by Obregon. There is a strong feeling in official circles that if possible responsibility for declaring war should be placed on Carranza. The administration would prefer this way out, but many of the Congressional leaders believe that Carranza will continue to harass the American forces without making any formal declaration of war and thus force the hand of the United States. It was believed here that the Mexican cabinet at its session today might take steps to bring the present crisis to a head."

GEN. OBREGON WAS RESPONSIBLE

Gave Orders For Attack of Mexicans
Upon U. S. Troops at Carrizal in Which Americans Were Killed

(Special to The Herald.)

Mexico City, June 22.—Full responsibility for the attack upon American soldiers at Carrizal is assumed by Minister of War Obregon in an official statement issued at the War Department. This says that the Americans were trying to occupy the railway station at Carrizal.

Gen. Carranza has called a full meeting of the cabinet for this afternoon. The statement issued by Obregon follows:
"The ministry under my charge by the First Chief's orders instructed Gen. Trevino on June 13 that if Gen. Pershing's forces forming the punitive expedition which penetrated our national territory after the Columbus raid, moved southward, eastward, or westward from where they were, they should be attacked. Early this Wednesday morning an American force tried to occupy the station of Carrizal on the Mexican Central Railway. Gen. Trevino ordered it to be attacked. The fight that resulted is described in official reports rendered to this ministry by Gen. Trevino as follows: June 21, 1916. Headquarters, Chihuahua City.—To Minister of War and Navy Gen. Alvaro Obregon: Gen. Gonzales reported to me last night from Ciudad Juarez, that American forces were arriving at Santo Domingo. Therefore I ordered they be attacked today and am informed the fight began at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning in Carrizal. I have just been informed that the American forces were repulsed. Gen. Felix Gomez was seriously wounded. He commanded our forces. We have others killed and wounded. Seven Americans were taken prisoners and just now I received another message reporting the death of Gen. Gomez. I am giving the necessary orders. Signed Gen. Trevino."
Another message quickly following this read:
"Headquarters, Chihuahua City.—To

Gen. Obregon—Urgent. I have just been informed from Ciudad Juarez, that when the forces were reorganized it turned out that 17 Americans were captured, not seven, as stated in the foregoing report. The American interpreter was captured. He confessed that the American leader was responsible for the conflict. I have ordered that the prisoners be brought here.
"Respectfully,
"General in Chief Trevino."

SUPERIOR COURT.

The action of Mrs. Rose Cohen against the Williamsburg City Fire Insurance Company to recover $1300 insurance for damage to her property on Marcy street occupied the attention of the court on Thursday. Both Judge Young and Judge Kivel were present at the morning session, the latter arranging for next week's business. Oliver Plante pleaded guilty to an aggravated assault and was sentenced by Judge Kivel to eight months at the house of correction at Brentwood with costs.

SAYS OFFER STILL HOLDS GOOD.

Hon. Albert W. Noone of Peterborough told the newspapers on Wednesday that his offer to equip a regiment for service in Mexico or on the border still holds good. "I'll plant a year ago to give $5,000 to raise a regiment and he said Wednesday that he will give his own services and go himself if necessary."

Juarez, June 22.—The main force of the garrison here is evacuating the town and entraining for Villa Guzman, where the Carranza troops are reported preparing to make a stand against American troops who are said to be moving on that place after the Carrizal fight. These troops trains were loaded during the morning and three others had orders to move south. Only a small force will be left here to control the situation and they are expected to offer only a brief resistance should the United States troops cross the border from El Paso. Gen. CLASS OF 1916 SAYS FAREWELL TO SCHOOL

Commencement Exercises of Portsmouth
High School Held Thursday Afternoon
--Mayor Ladd Presents Diplomas-- Reception at Freeman's Hall in the Evening

The commencement exercises of the Portsmouth High school were held at the Portsmouth Theatre on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock and the spacious playhouse was filled to its utmost capacity by the friends and relatives of the graduates.

The members of the school and the graduating class occupied seats on a raised platform on the stage and presented an attractive appearance. The front of the stage was attractively decorated with flowers and hemlock boughs.

Shortly before 3 o'clock the members of the school filed in and took their places, the seniors being in the front row. Seated on the stage also were: Principals Dunfield, Mayor Ladd, Hon. Calvin Hoge and Charles E. Houghton of the High school committee.

The exercises commenced with an invocation by Rev. William P. Stanley pastor of the Middle Street Church. This was followed by singing of "Lovely Night," by the school.

Presentation of Class Gift
The presentation of the class gift was by Justin Dimick French, president of the class of 1916. He spoke as follows:

Mayor Ladd, Members of the Board of Instruction, Teachers and Pupils of the High School, Ladies and Gentlemen:

"The idea of presenting to the Portsmouth High school a gift as a token of our esteem for that institution is by no means original with the class of 1916. For the last 25 years each succeeding graduating class has presented a gift, following the example of individual friends of the school in earlier years. Such a friend was James P. Fields, the author and publisher who gave hundreds of books for use in the school library. An appreciation of his generosity is partially shown by the name of our Debating Society.

Following the lead of such benefactors it came to be the custom for each pupil to present to the school library at least one book during his school course. Individual gifts of this kind were given until 1890 when the graduating class of that year offered to the Portsmouth High school its first real class gift. Since then the new custom thus established, has been followed by each succeeding class up to the present time.

As this custom has become fixed there has of course arisen each year the question as to what the class gift should be. The answer would naturally be an expression of what the class considers that the High school stands for, or in other words the gift should be symbolic of the school work and ideals. We trace this ideal through the list of gifts presented by the various classes between 1890 and 1916. Twenty-four valuable pictures have been given, many of them representing scenes associated with the great movements of history and culture; eight plaster casts representing of ancient, medieval and modern eras of history; two large statues, one of Demosthenes, greatest of the Greek orators, the other of Diana, Goddess of the Chase and of Light; a valuable silver cup which is awarded annually to the victorious team in the interclass debates; besides five cases of one hundred books each, which are still in constant use in the library. These gifts clearly represent the long cherished ideal of the classical high school.

In early times scholars were instructed almost entirely in Latin, Greek, and mathematics. Later modern languages and sciences were admitted to the curriculum. Now, departments are being added which represent ideas entirely foreign to the old system of education. The curriculum of the High school was up to recent years devoted to the sole purpose of preparing pupils for college; hence the boy who had this ambition in mind and the one who expected to enter immediately upon an industrial life were sent through the same course. This lack of studies, practically adapted to the needs of industrial students, largely explains the comparatively small number of graduates at that time.

Now the attempt is to fit a boy or girl for the actual life that awaits them. In the business courses, which include typewriting, bookkeeping, stenography, and commercial law, pupils intending to enter upon a commercial career are given a foundation for their life work. The great practical results obtained from our manual training department have been seen at various public exhibitions held in High school hall. In our domestic science department excellent training is given to the girls in such work as cooking, sewing, dressmaking and millinery. Instruction is also given in household planning, sanitation, nursing and in fact in almost every art and science connected with the household. Thus when a girl graduates from this department she should be thoroughly capable of managing the affairs of a home.

PORTSMOUTH HIGH TAKES DECIDING GAME FROM DOVER

Visitors Defeated in Third Battle, 12 to 4—Butler, Mulholland and Timmons Pounded Out Long Hits—Dover's Errors Were Costly

The rubber game between Dover and Portsmouth high schools, played here on Wednesday afternoon, resulted in a decisive victory for the home team when they captured the game with a 12 to 4 score. The runs came early to Portsmouth, two coming in the first inning without a hit; errors and a sacrifice doing the work; to ten hits by Portsmouth, for a total of seventeen bases, helping pretty much.

Much of the pleasure of the game was spoiled by the rain although it did not begin to fall hard until the last inning. One fast double play made by Fisher, Wentworth and Ham, Thompson's all round work in the field; two fine catches by Finnegan for Dover and Mulholland's hard stab of a line drive, were the features.

For three innings, Hodgdon was very effective, allowing but one hit, but in the fifth they scored two runs, and although he might have again steadied back, he was replaced by Spinnery. Spinnery pitched good ball, holding the ruthless until the ninth when they scored two runs on a double, single and an error, until the ninth when they scored two runs on a double single and an error. Portsmouth was charged with four errors, only one of which was very costly. Portsmouth was charged with four errors, only one of which was very costly. Dover making six which hurt. Bailey dug one out of the mud, thrown low by Butler, in the sixth when T. Cavanaugh hit sharply, giving red letter time to get the thrown out in proper style.

The game was marked throughout by clean sportsmanship of all the players, both teams working hard for a victory but without any personal animosity.

The Game

1st Inning.—Ham fanned, M. Cavanaugh was tossed out at first by Hodgdon. Brennan reached base on a bad throw by Butler. Finnegan out on a high foul fly to Smith. NO HITS, ONE ERROR, NO RUNS.

Mulholland's grounder got away from Ham. He stole second and came home on M. Cavanaugh's wild throw to third to prevent another steal. Thompson fanned. Butler walked and Bailey was safe on Wentworth's error. They pulled a double steal. Timmons sacrificed with a long fly to Tom Cavanaugh in center, Butler scoring from third after the catch. Craig made the third out with a fly to Brennan. NO HITS, THREE ERRORS, TWO RUNS.

2d Inning.—Fisher flied to Timmons. Wentworth and Early were both thrown out by Thompson on grounders. NO HITS, NO ERRORS, NO RUNS.

Currier fanned. Smith grounded out to Wentworth. Hodgdon singled and scored on Mulholland's triple to right. Thompson singled, scoring Mulholland, and was forced by Butler's grounder to Wentworth, unassisted. THREE HITS, NO ERRORS, TWO RUNS.

3d Inning.—T. Cavanaugh was passed. DeSalle fanned. Ham singled back of second. M. Cavanaugh was safe on Hodgdon's booting his grounder. With three on, Brennan popped to Timmons. Finnegan belted a hard bouncer which Thompson made a wonderful one hand stab of. ONE HIT, ONE ERROR, NO RUNS.

4th Inning.—Fisher singled to center. Timmons hammered out a three bagger to left but was caught between third and home. Fisher to M. Cavanaugh to Early, after Craig had been hit by a pitched ball. Craig stole second. Currier singled, scoring Craig, but was out stealing. M. Cavanaugh to Wentworth. TWO HITS, NO ERRORS, ONE RUN.

5th Inning.—Fisher singled to center.

WITH THE SPORTS

(By Frank G. Menke)

Old timers like to tell the story of the last battle between Kid McCoy and Peter Maher—the exhibition bout during which McCoy knocked out the Irishman with one punch.

Eight or ten years ago an event card was arranged. The promoters figured that it would add to the safety of the occasion if they could get on McCoy and Maher. Both practically had retired from active ring work, and the folks behind the affair used a bit of subterfuge in "making" the match.

An emissary went to McCoy: "Say Kid," he said, "I understand that Peter Maher's been saying that the knockout you scored over him in Coney Island in 1909 was a fluke. He says if he ever got another chance at you he'd knock you flatter than a pancake."

"Pete says that, hey?" bellowed McCoy. "Why, the old stiff. Say, if I ever got another crack at him he wouldn't last five minutes."

"Oh, by the way, Kid," said the emissary as an afterthought, "there is going to be a benefit entertainment a week or two. Would you mind going on for a few rounds?"

"Not at all," answered McCoy. "And say, if you can do it get Maher for me."

And then the emissary went to Peter and remarked that "McCoy is around boasting about his easy victory over you at Coney Island." Naturally, Peter flared right up. He spoke his thoughts concerning Mr. Kid McCoy, and asserted heatedly that if he ever got another chance at the Kid he'd bust him in half with one punch.

"The 'france-up' dropped a remark about the benefit entertainment and added:

"McCoy is going to donate his services. We are trying to find someone to box him. Can you suggest anyone?"

"Can I?" blurted out Peter. Well, sure can. And his name is Peter Maher. You'll let me box him, d'ya hear?"

And so the bout was made.

When the rivals entered the ring it was apparent to everyone that both were not in real fighting shape. Also it was noticeable that both men instead of exhibiting the friendliness that usually exists between boxers in a benefit performance, were glaring at each other savagely.

The referee brought them together and told them that the affair was to be a boxing exhibition only.

"Nothing else mind you," cautioned the referee. "Just box and take it easy. No rough stuff."

"I hear you," said Peter. "I gotta," responded McCoy.

"The gong banged and the fighters walked to the center of the ring and began fiddling around.

"Now mind you, Peter, no slugging," murmured the Kid. "We're just boxing, see?"

"That's right, McCoy, and don't try anything funny with me," retorted Peter.

The fiddling continued. The pair circled the ring but neither offered to swing. The round was about half over without a lead being made, when McCoy, fox that he always was, half turned toward the audience. He seemed unconscious of the fact that he was supposed to be fighting. Maher watched him carefully for a moment figuring it was a trick. But the Kid continued oblivious to his ring foe.

Peter advanced closer and closer. This was an opening that was too good to miss. Peter who'll remember hadn't forgotten the stigma of that Coney Island defeat. Nor was he forgetting what McCoy is supposed to have said about him. Revenge is quite sweet.

Peter drew back the mighty right that had sent so many men into the land of dreams; drew it back cautiously so as to get the full power into it when he swung. His arm shot for the Kid's head with the whole might of the Maher body behind it—but the blow never landed.

Like a streak of lightning the Kid wheeled around. This was the chance he had craved. His right foot hit out of range of the Maher haymaker. As the wallop whizzed past him and Mr. Maher off balance, was in range, McCoy lashed out a right that caught Peter flush on the jaw. The rash was heard in all parts of the house.

A little while later, Peter muttering, and the divil said "no rough stuff."

SAILOR GETS DECISION OVER DAVE POWERS

Joe Startz of the Montana Wins from Malden Fighter After Being Fouled Four Times in the Bout—Tommie West Wins from Fighting Chink

Joe Startz of the U. S. S. Montana successfully demonstrated to Dave Powers of Malden, Mass., that he could put up "some" battle when he was mad, and he sure did land the Boston scrapper a lacing in the last few rounds of the ten round bout before the Rockingham A. C. last evening. Powers, following tactics used by him on several occasions of late, fouled the sailor four times in the last four rounds; once in the seventh, twice in the eighth and once in the ninth. Startz refused to quit and came back at his opponent, cutting him badly about the face and receiving a well earned decision at the end of the bout. Powers was severely criticized by a great majority of the fans for his fouling and it was easily seen that Startz's victory was gratifying to them.

In the prelims Stevie Travers of Hilderford, Me., went six rounds to a draw against Sammie Lewis of Manchester. The fight was full of action and the decision was well received by the fans. Both lads showed a willingness to mix things at all times and put up a very satisfactory exhibition, both hitting hard and cleanly all through their encounter.

West Given Decision Over Chung

Harry Ah Chung, the fighting Chink from Salem, Mass., was pronounced by the referee as defeated, in his eight round go against Tommy West of Manchester. Chung, a favorite here as everywhere he fights, put up a game, hard battle against West, and in our opinion, clearly out-pitched his opponent in six of the last eight rounds. In the 10-fighting West was able to do considerable damage, cutting Harry by his roughing, and he had his nose and face bleeding badly in the last two rounds. The decision was not popular, the fans giving Harry a hearty cheer of applause after leaving the ring. In the opinion of the majority the worst he could have had was a draw.

He did the greater part of the leading and put so much time into his punches as he could, landing cleanly almost at will. West worked hard and willingly, and the bout was well worth looking at all the way through. Referee Schlossberg, well liked and respected, and a chap who knows the game, intended to be perfectly fair in this decision but he was off, so that fans think, in handling the Salem boxer, the small cut, especially after his statement before the action opened, that unless one man was decisively defeated the bouts would be declared draws. But it was a good fight. West has considerable weight on Chung, which gave him a great advantage. This was offset by Chung's cleverness and he boxed rings around the Manchester boy for six of the eight rounds.

The Main Bout

After the semi-final the main bout looked pretty tame for a few rounds. The two men were too well acquainted with each other, having been together all evening, "visiting" in the dressing room. Both men were talking to each other too much during the action and the gloves looked as though they were "swapped." It may have been Powers' plan of action, but if so, he was the loser, as Startz, even in the kidding, was getting in the points, two to one. In the sixth round Powers dropped his grin and started after Startz. He knocked the grin off Startz's face and the sailor had realized then that it was a case of action. He was game and hit hard and often, forgetting to offer any apologies to Powers when he landed. Powers took a lacing in this bout and in the seventh, after forcing Startz to the ropes in a corner, deliberately fouled the boy.

It was weakening to Startz, but he went into a clinch and held on until he had recovered. He came back fairly strong. In the eighth the foul was twice repeated. Startz stuck to his work and for his gameness and clean sporting blood, was fouled again in the ninth.

Powers was warned by the referee and the manager of the club had him notified that a repetition would mean "walk home and starve." In the final round he did his best to protect himself but was gone; and the fans were yelling for a "K. O." Startz, although hitting at will and with all the strength at his command, was too weakened to put across the sleep-maker and Powers was on his feet at the bell. Startz fought a hard, clean fight against Powers. The lad shows promise of being a comer with little more training and experience and although out-weighting his opponent he showed that with some careful development he may be a figure to be considered in the game.

The bouts were all deferred by Phil Schlossberg, former heavy-weight champion of the navy. He did an excellent job as the third man in the ring, keeping the fighters breaking clean and working all the time. His decision in the semi-final did not please all of the fans, but none present believe that he was not firmly convinced that West had the better of the argument. It was a good card with twenty-four rounds of fast work.

SECRETARY HATCH HONORED BY YACHT CLUB MEMBERS

Was Guest at Complimentary Dinner Last Evening and Club Presented Him With a Ship's Clock

Mr. Charles E. Hatch, secretary of the Portsmouth Yacht Club, Ex-Commodore, and one of the founders of the organization, was the guest of honor at the club on Wednesday evening when a complimentary supper was served, in appreciation by the members for the hard and faithful work he has performed in bringing the club to its present state of activity and prosperity. Mr. Hatch was among the little handful who organized the club many years ago and had faithfully worked for its growth and influence every year since its establishment. Although not generally known, it is in a great measure due to his efforts that the Portsmouth Yacht Club holds a place among yachting men along the coast as one of the most hospitable and enjoyable clubs in New England.

Soon after the club was established in its present quarters Mr. Hatch took the time to visit other yacht clubs, get acquainted with their officers and induce them to pay his club a visit. Many of these invitations were accepted and the members of the club did the rest. The Portsmouth Yacht Club today holds a place high in the lists of clubs which are always ready with help and a warm, strong welcome to the visitor.

Mr. Hatch has held the office of secretary only for the past two years but he will be retired from the post only when he refuses to hold it any longer. In 1914 he was elected Commodore of the club but refused to serve a second term. He was then elected secretary.

At the conclusion of the excellent dinner served by the club steward Commodore Luke Ayworth called the members to order and in flattering terms paid high tribute to the efforts of their guest for his work in the interests of the club from its foundation. He then presented Mr. Hatch with a valuable ship's clock, a gift which Mr. Hatch has always desired. In his remarks the commodore said in part:

"We have assembled here tonight to pay honor to one of our members and I feel my inability to express in proper words that which I feel would best fit the occasion, because Mr. Hatch, our secretary and ex-commodore, as an officer and a member of the Portsmouth Yacht Club, has so endeared himself to us by his unflinching efforts in our behalf. Words fail me to properly express our appreciation for all that he has done. In the short time that I have been a member of the club I have always found him ready and willing to help the club in all ways. To know Mr. Hatch as a friend is the love him as a man."

"Mr. Charles Hatch: We, the members of the Portsmouth Yacht Club, wish you to feel in some slight measure that we do appreciate all that you have done for us, and for this purpose we have assembled here tonight. Mr. Boyd has something to say that will further express our appreciation for all that you have done for the club."

In a few well chosen words Mr. Boyd presented Mr. Hatch with the ship's clock. In response Mr. Hatch said: "Mr. Commodore, and members of the Portsmouth Yacht Club, I suppose there comes a time in everyone's life when appreciation and a little flattery please. And I want to say that the kind words of our commodore and this complimentary dinner which you have kindly tendered me, only cement more closely the friendship which exists between us. If I have accomplished any thing by my interest for this club, I feel fully repaid by this pleasant and cordial greeting; and that my efforts have been appreciated and I want to thank you one and all for your good wishes. One of the most essential things in a club is the finances. The members of this club have kept the Yacht Club on its feet by being prompt with their dues, and as secretary I thank you for it. We have had some sixty odd boats visit us the past year and from the letters I have received our efforts to make their visits pleasant have been appreciated. While commodore, I had the pleasure of visiting several yacht clubs along the coast from Portland to Boston and can assure you that the Portsmouth Yacht Club was spoken of everywhere with great respect. Let every one try and boost the club and this year will be a banner year. Again I thank you. I wish to say that our Commodore has worked with his utmost to help the success of this club. All honor to him the Commodore, Mr. Boyd. Members of the Yacht Club when the chiming of this clock strikes I shall think of you."

The remainder of the evening was spent with singing and music, the instrumental part of the program being given by Muchmore and Clark. The yacht club has purchased a new piano since the first of the month, the work of securing the subscription for its payment having fallen to Mr. Hatch. At the close of the meeting last evening he announced that the last of the necessary funds were at hand and the final payment would be made on the instrument in the morning.

SUFFRAGE ITEMS

One of the significant proofs of the good work done by the women voters

In Chicago is given in an editorial in the Survey of May 6th.

In speaking of the condition of the amusement parks which were soon to be in full swing the Editor says: "If the part which the women took for decency in the spring elections in Chicago is to be followed up, they (the amusement parks) offer an especial objective for concerted work during the summer. To this end the Juvenile Protective Association is bringing out at the outset of the season the results of its investigations of last year into the physical and moral surroundings in theatres, dance halls, cabarets and lake boats, as well as in the amusement parks. In an address before the Women's City Club on April 24th Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, President of the Association, declared that the conditions under the present city administration are worse than they have ever before known them to be. They sound a ringing challenge to the moral energy, almost the maternal instinct of the women of Chicago, said she, 'that they may rise to protect these young people through the only method possible, the purification of political life.'"

In a later number of the Survey, May 27th, these cabarets are spoken of in detail, showing the new danger to which the report of the Juvenile Protective Association calls attention.

In Mayor Thompson's administration the city has been much wider open than before. It can be distinctly recalled that at the time of the election the vote was analyzed, showing that if the women's vote had been counted alone the other candidate would have been elected, so that the men of Chicago must be held wholly responsible for his election.

Eight potatoes 08
One onion 02
Salt pork 02

13 cents per person.

In the bottom of a large earthenware mixing bowl, or an enameled pot, place a layer of pollock, or Boston bluefish. Have the fish cut into large square pieces. Over the fish place a layer of thin sliced potatoes. Then place another layer of fish, followed by a layer of sliced onion. On top place another layer of potato. Pack these into the pot as tightly as possible. Season with salt and pepper. Pour enough milk into the pot to just cover the other ingredients. Bake three hours in a moderate oven, without covering the pot.

Before placing the fish and vegetables in the pot as above, first try out three or four two inch squares of salt pork in the bottom.

GERMAN PEOPLE DEMANDING MORE ACTIVE U BOAT WAR

Berlin, June 21.—Taking advantage of a growing indifference to American opinion, advocates of a strong submarine policy have reopened the campaign for a more effective use of the German U-boats.

The German people now realize that hostilities will not end this summer, and may drag into next year. Faced with this fact, they are united in the desire to see the war pushed with the utmost vigor until the allies are brought to terms. This feeling, spreading gradually throughout the empire during the past few weeks has been seized upon as a weapon by the men who condemned Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg for yielding to the United States in the recent submarine controversy.

The chancellor at the present moment has the upper hand. But the recent slackening of the press censorship has been followed by some bold statements regarding the effectiveness of the submarine weapon which Germany still possesses, and by renewed activity on the part of the Navy League.

It is impossible to forecast what the result will be if regard for American opinion gives way more and more to the determination for aggressive measures to bring the war to a victorious end.

Europe's unfriendly reception of President Wilson's peace talk before the League to Enforce Peace, perhaps caused interest in Germany to yearn away from America. At any rate it is believed that the President's failure to obtain a response has not added to his influence.

During recent conversations with public men, I have noted a general change in their attitude toward America. Summed up the German view right now is about this:

"Sixty per cent of Americans are against us. Thirty per cent are for us. Ten per cent are indifferent. Nothing we can do will change American opinion in a way that will help us win the war. We should go ahead then, concentrating all our energy on victory."

The military and economic situation convince the Germans that they have nothing to fear from a continuance of the fighting. An admission in an article in the London Mail that the British food blockade cannot force Germany to terms has been widely read here. In view of the recent eight days of rain, followed by ideal weather for crops, the German people are convinced that they cannot be starved out.

The Russian offensive hasn't disturbed the public mind. The Cologne Gazette declares that the Russians not only have been halted but that a successful German counter-attack is already under way. The Russians, the Gazette says, have failed in their plans to win Roumania to the side of the allies, as is evidenced by the fact that the Roumanian Queen is soon to visit Berlin.

The Lokai Anzeiger emphasized another phase of the situation today. Referring to the English losses in the Skagerrak engagement to the French losses at Verdun and the Italian losses in the Trentino, the Lokai Anzeiger declared the allies are using magnifying glasses to convert defeats into seeming victories. The article concluded with the statement that since the allies fail to realize they are beaten there is only one thing for Germany to do—fight the war to a finish.

BASE BALL IN THE EARLY DAYS

Interesting Reminiscences of the Game as Played in the Early 'Sixties.

Not many are now living who were on the list as ball players in the early 60's of 1860. Not many are left who recall the gathering of "ball tossers" who met in the field on Middle street opposite Anthony street. A field poorly adapted for a game of ball, the diamond being at the summit of the elevation where the residence of the late H. F. Webster was later built. The field, irregular in shape and home runs were easy—as stone walls had to be surmounted in order to find the ball after a strong whack by the batter.

But it was under these adverse conditions that a goodly number of enthusiasts did their early training, which later on developed sufficient talent to organize a ball club, which met regularly on the grounds.

The attendance at the scrub games (for such they call) was quite large and sides were chosen without difficulty from the crowd that gathered. Many accidents of minor note naturally were incident at almost every game as unskilled hands and heads were exposed to play the game.

But talent and fitness were both ascriptive and the men were as willing to pull out of the game as were the skilled ones anxious to substitute talent that was in waiting to get into the game.

A fellow who could play good ball on "Bundell's Mountain" could "make good" for the organization of the later "Rockingham" and Granite State clubs which in 1867 ranked well with the best teams in the state.

The games on the mountain were generally played on Wednesday p. m., starting at 2 o'clock. It may be of interest to make special mention of a game, Married and Single, with players, viz:

Married—Charles A. Shannon, captain and 1b; E. O. Pierce, Jr., p. Calvin L. Hayes, c. A. H. Lackey 2b, Washington Freeman 3b, R. Kimball Jr., ss, W. B. Coleman rf, W. O. Sides of, Joseph H. Foster lf.

Single Men—F. W. Rhodes, captain and catcher; George W. Marston p. Wilbur F. Lamb 1b, F. W. Brown 2b, H. Barlow 3b, T. W. Tucker ss, Albert W. Emery rf, Daniel J. Vaughan cf, James H. Dow lf.

A. M. Payson, teacher at the Boys' School, was scorer for the Married Men. Fred L. Dodge scored for the Single Men, and W. W. Palfrey, was the umpire.

Ample accommodations were provided for the ladies at this game.

Of the twenty-one names who took part in this game only two are now living—James H. Dow, now a resident of Portsmouth, and Albert W. Emery living in Brooklyn, N. Y., being among the best players in the "Rockingham" and the Granite State teams, assisting to win many games in later years and both were active and sturdy ball players for several years. Of Mr. Emery who played first base for the Rockingham club, it was said that a ball thrown to him was a sure catch as if "falling into a bucket of tar" and of Mr. Dow it is well known, that as a long distance thrower he could have established himself as a world beater, having exceeded the world's record of those days of 114 feet, 2 feet.

Mr. Dow as left field could easily send the longest knocked balls to the home plate without the delay of the present day. He was also known as the swiftest underhand pitcher in the state. No masks or gloves in those days and the ball with three ounces of rubber in it, left the bat much swifter than that of the present make.

WITH ARTIFICIAL ARMS SOLDIERS DO GREAT FEATS

London, June 21.—Soldiers who have lost an arm in the war are doing some amazing feats. Indeed, with the artificial limbs now offered, it is possible for a persevering man to almost equal nature.

Queen Mary Auxiliary Hospital at Southampton is exclusively for disabled soldiers and sailors. The King and Queen recently visited this institution, founded by Mrs. Gwynne Holldford, and were deeply impressed.

At one of the benches the King saw a Tommy working and found that although he had lost an arm and leg at Arras, he is now able to do useful work. With a special clip taking the place of a dummy right hand he used a variety of tools under the King's inspection and afterward took a match from a box and lighted it with dexterity and ease.

"Can you shake hands?" asked the Queen of an armless private of the First West Ontario Regiment.

"Try me, your majesty," promptly replied the Canadian. The Queen shook hands with him, laughing merrily at the convulsing grip of the artificial hand.

Professor Laveran recently showed the French Academy of Science a remarkable substitute for a missing arm invented by Professor Auzar. The arm, hand and fingers are of aluminum and very light. With a glove on it is almost impossible to perceive that the limb is artificial. Certain movements of the thumb acting on fine

Because Socony Kerosene is the safest and best kerosene on the market. Inexpensive, too, compared to the present price of coal. The New Perfection Oil Cook Stove cooks three meals a day for a family of six at an average fuel cost of six cents.

The New Perfection is economical and efficient, because the long blue chimney burner converts every drop of oil into clear, intense heat. Mutilated soldiers equipped with this device played the violin, made cigarettes and gave out change for a bank note before the academy.

The famous one-armed Hungarian pianist, Count Giza Zichy, might be mentioned here. Having lost his right arm in a hunting accident, he succeeded in making such a brilliant pianist that Liszt and Hanslick were amazed and another admirer declared: "Zichy does not play one-handed. He plays four-handed."

The Factory Behind the Food

More than forty different kinds of corn flakes were prepared experimentally before New Post Toasties were finally developed to perfection. As a distinguishing feature, not the tiny bubbles on each flake—raised by the quick, intense heat of a new, patented process of manufacture.

New Post Toasties are the first corn flakes with a self-developed flavour—the full, true flavour of choice white Indian Corn—unlike common "corn flakes" that depend largely on cream and sugar for their palatability.

Try a handful dry—this simple test will demonstrate the delicious new flavour. But the flakes are usually served with cream or rich milk.

New Post Toasties do not "chaff" or crumble in the package, and they "stand up" when cream or milk is added. They're untouched by human hands and put up in moisture-proof packages to preserve their oven freshness until served.

The Broader View.

In a newspaper communication a writer who was evidently deeply stirred by the Flag Day celebration and preparedness parade held in the city in which he lives, after commenting upon the grandeur of the spectacle with its enlivening music and the enthusiasm created says: "Let us remember that there is only one land worth loving, and that land is the United States. Let us forget any prejudices of creed or color and bear in mind the motto, 'America first, last and all the time.'"

But it would not be well for the people of the United States to go as far as this. It is all right for them to stand for America first, last and all the time, as it is proper for the individual and the individual family to look out for themselves first of all. But after having provided for his own household there is a duty that one yet owes to the community. If every individual and family group were to feel that their whole duty had been performed when they had taken care of themselves, this would be a cold, harsh world, a poor place in which to live, and the word "patriotism" would be without meaning.

If Christianity is not an empty word and civilization an idle dream there is such a thing as the family of nations, and the ideal condition is one in which they should live together as peaceably as the families in a civilized and Christian community. These families owe their first duty to themselves, but they also are under obligation to each other and to all to do their part toward making the community all that it ought to be.

And the same holds true of the nations of the world. It is the duty of each to promote its own welfare without infringing upon the rights of others, and of all to work for the benefit of humanity as a whole. In this sense it is proper that every country should stand for itself first, last and all the time. Honest rivalry in business there may well be, for this results in benefit to all, but the prejudice which leads any country to feel that it is the only one worth loving and respecting is destructive of the unity and spirit of brotherhood which should bind together the family of nations in one great and harmonious whole. The true Christian spirit is absent from the heart of any man who believes his own country is the only one in the world worth loving. There must be a broader view if the world is to be made what it ought to be.

President Wilson played a double role in the Flag Day observance in Washington. After marching for some distance at the head of the column he stepped out of the line and reviewed the parade. The anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the emblem of the Union was fittingly observed in all parts of the country, and it was highly appropriate that the president of the United States should take a prominent part.

The inspectors of New York hotels and restaurants report that the culinary conditions of most of these establishments are far from sanitary. And yet the city boasts of a steadily decreasing death rate. Perhaps the inspectors are putting too much emphasis on technicalities, something which army officers complain is keeping out of the ranks too many men who want to enlist.

It is announced from London that Marconi has invented a device which will prevent collisions between ships in darkness or fog. It is to be hoped the report is true. It is far more pleasing to read of inventions designed to save life than of those developed for the purpose of slaughter.

A Massachusetts man 95 years old was killed by a motorcycle last Sunday while on his way home from church. But the incident instead of being an argument against attending church is a powerful one in favor of greater care in the operation of motor vehicles.

Go-as-you-please spelling is bound to have its effect. Since the beginning of the war Serbia and Serbia have been one and the same, and so perhaps it is not strange that a headline tells of a woman who "osberbes" her 100th birthday.

The educational institutions of the country are now passing out honorary degrees. But the greatest degree of all—P. U. S.—will be conferred by the people of the United States on the 7th of November next.

Henry Ford says he will spend the remainder of his life working for peace. That is what all the nations at war claim to be doing, though they work along lines very different from those of Mr. Ford.

Some of the reports from Mexico are such as to give ground for the suspicion that Villa is still very much alive.

The Russians are rushin' things.

GIVEN DAY TO KILL HIMSELF

Missouri Judge Grants Wife Beater Permission To Do So.

KANSAS CITY, June 22.—"If I ever get out of here I am going to kill myself," declared John Seaman, in police court, for beating his wife.

"All right, you are a free man," Judge Brady announced. "Your case is continued until tomorrow night. Meantime the police are ordered to let you alone, especially not to interfere with any suicide attempt you may make. The river is at the foot of that street out the window, or I'll give you any amount you may require to purchase poison. Your wife and baby and everybody else concerned would be a whole lot better off if you were dead."

Seaman did not reply.

BRITISH COMMANDER QUIET, STUDIOUS MAN

(By Frederick Palmer International News Service Special Correspondent)

British Headquarters, France, June 22.—No military leader in modern warfare is so public or works more silent than Sir Douglas Haig, the British commander-in-chief in France. To those who are in contact with the general he is a man of patience and yet again patience while the new munition factories begin to produce and he continues his building. His generals say that he never tells them his plans, only what they are to do.

Probably not one man out of ten of the millions or more under his command would recognize him if they saw him. Not given to reviews or any kind of display, this quiet and studious Seaman was the choice of the progressive practical driving element of the army as the one fit to equip, train and lead the army to success. Sir John French, at 55 he is 9 years younger than Sir John and 10 years younger than Joffre or von Hindenburg.

There is the story that he entered the army as the result of a boyish wager. He went through Oxford with distinction before he entered the military school at Sandhurst. His choice of arms was the cavalry which had so little to do so far in this war. But no sooner had he received his commission, later in life than most officers because of the time that he had spent at Oxford, than he set out with the thoroughness of the student to master every branch of his profession.

"It was in Berlin in the 90's that I met a captain Haig who was studying German and the German army," said an Englishman. "I was struck by his industry—not a brilliant man, perhaps, but a sound and well-balanced one, a little hesitant of speech, what he did say went to the heart of things."

He studied the French army too, and the history of all campaigns with the systematic thoroughness that he applied to everything. It was the same with his pastime as his profession. Whether he had talent for it or not he made himself a first class golf player, though the form which he developed did not excite the envy of professionals.

At the British army staff college where officers learn organization he was a marked man before he acted as chief of staff to General French in South Africa in the operation that made French's reputation. He was a soldier's soldier who had won solid professional esteem, though the public had hardly heard of this reserved, unobtrusive worker.

Of the men of command rank in the British army in August, 1914, he and Sir William Robertson—another studious man who had risen from the rank—and is now chief of staff in London, were the two who were appraised by the generation of officers who had developed since South Africa as having prepared themselves for the direction of large bodies of troops on the scale of continental warfare. They were not the magnetic, flashing leader type, but organizers.

Going out in command of the first army of the British expeditionary force, Sir Douglas had seventeen months experience—Mons, Ypres and Loos—of the warfare of the western front, which all agree is the toughest school any soldier has ever known.

There was no doubt who commanded the First Army. It was Haig. He was no figurehead for the work of an able chief of staff. London gossips did not bandy his name about; he was not a personality to the public, though he was to the army.

When any one asked at the front who was the best man to take the place of Sir John the answer was invariably: "Haig." He had not captured the army's imagination, but his reason. The tribute was one to brains.

The new army was arriving in great numbers from its English drill grounds when he took over command. His country expects him to make an instrument which will execute a successful offensive on the western front where the four months' effort of the Germans at Verdun, the French effort in Champagne and the British effort at Neuve Chapelle and Loos can force many military critics that the feat is impossible.

CURRENT OPINION

Treaties Are Beneficial, But Not Securities Against Greed.

Among the many objects to which a wise and free people find it necessary to direct their attention that of providing for their safety seems to be the first. This is no less true today than when Hamilton, at the very beginning of the Union, pleaded for such preparedness as would not invite war, but discourage and repel it.

What has been our military history? Our navy has been called to action eight times, or once every 17.3 years. Our victories over England were due to timely distractions of her forces. In the cases of Spain and Mexico our strength was superior. It cannot be expected in future that our enemies will be inferior.

On the contrary, there is reason to believe that America's next war will be with an equal or superior enemy and fought to the finish.

The anti-preparedness arguments are fallacious. Treaties are beneficial, but they are not security against the warlike's greed. Lack of preparedness, furthermore, not only weakens an existing treaty, but cripples the power to make satisfactory ones. The opponents of preparedness contend also that we have enough latent force to repel any invasion. Do they recall that Washington was sacked and burned in 1814?—By Louden M. Townsend, Columbia University.

out a ditch and unknown to the Germans was the taking over of the trenches occupied in the Arras section by General Félou's army, which was released for Verdun. This gave the British an intact front of about one hundred miles; and was decided upon by the "Allies" commanders as wiser than a premature British offensive in the mire and bog of the flat country of Flanders and northern France.

A wisp of a flag and two sentries designate the entrance to the chateau smaller than that occupied by many division generals which is the headquarters of the commander-in-chief. Anyone who expects to be ushered in to offices with aides will be disappointed. No place could be further removed from the struggle of the trenches and yet in the army zone.

The only occupants of the chateau beside Sir Douglas are his private secretary and his aides who are "crooks" the army word for officers who have been wounded and are not fit for the physical exposure of the trenches. In other words, if a youngster wishes to become an aide, he must have fought and then have the decision of a doctor that he cannot stand living in the cellar-like dug-outs.

The hour of any appointment is exact to the minute; and whoever has one at this chateau is expected to be there on the minute, general headquarters time. There is little ceremony. Life at that small chateau is a real soldier's simplicity. At luncheon, the soldier servant places the food on the sideboard and everyone takes his plate and helps himself. Few guests come. Sir Douglas keeps his time to himself for his work and his own choice of recreation.

One of the aides receives the caller and a minute later the man with iron grey hair and moustache, sturdy athletic build, slightly above medium height, who comes into the hall could be mistaken, whether in or out of uniform for anything but a soldier, though something about the well-chiseled regular features also suggests the scholar.

"Oxford and Sandhurst and India," said one of his aides, "and hard work at a desk when he was not taking exercise in the open air best describes him."

In one of the rooms of the ground floor the walls are hung with maps. Any portion of the front in all its details may be referred to in a moment. In the center of the room is a desk, and against the wall a table with more maps and drawings and some of these strange photographs from aeroplanes of greyish lines of trench systems in a dusky field of shell and mine craters. Out of doors a field of daisies, birds singing, a typical sunny day in northern France.

From this retreat a vast army is being trained and its organization completed and directed in the day by tug-of-war. The chief commands an army, still in the making. The staff always refer to him as "The Chief." There is something impersonal about it and yet personal; for he is absolutely the chief. There is no suggestion of any commission system in the command of the British army these days.

The man and his method are as quiet as the room. With a battle front which remains in the same place month after month the routine of his work has become almost as set as his habitation and not unlike that of the aboriginal of some big business organization. The regular staff officers are in a town not far away. Subordinates, chiefs of the different army branches, he H. operations, intelligence, ordnance or supply come to him in succession at hours set during the morning to make their reports and receive instructions. They do most of the talking and they have learned not to do more than necessary. He listens, decides.

If a longer conference than usual is desired it may come at luncheon or later in the afternoon when he returns from his ride, which he takes regularly every day. Then more work until dinner and then some after dinner, if he goes down the line or perhaps to confer with General Joffre in the one car which alone of all the cars carrying staff officers and generals along the road flies the British flag. The routine for that day is broken.

Like General Joffre he sleeps long hours. A rested mind is a clear mind for responsibility. Like Von Hindenburg he never reads fiction. When reading has not to do with his profession he reads serious books and monographs and quarters. Even during the battle of Ypres when it was tough and go with disaster he slept as soundly as Joffre during the battle of the Marne.

At a crisis of the retreat from Mons he remarked as quietly as if he were giving a direction to an aide: "We shall have to hold on here for a while if we all die for it."

There is never any justice about these modern scientific soldiers. And again during the retreat when a certain general became somewhat demoralized, Sir Douglas took him by the arm and walked up and down with him in silence until he was over his fit of nerves on that terrible August day. Those who work with him know that his sign of anger is a prolonged silence of a telling kind. He has a temper but does not let it get past his lips, they say. He has, too, a keen sense of humor with a Scotch flavor.

The impression he leaves on a caller is that of a leader without illusion; a soldier who sees with a soldier's logic; who is not afraid to be patient.

KITTERY

The regular meeting of York Rockwell Lodge will be held tonight. All members are requested to attend as business of importance will come before the meeting.

Mrs. William S. Gately is quite ill at her home at Locke's Cove with acute indigestion.

Edwin B. Rockwell, formerly a resident of Manchester, and nephew of Mr. E. B. Lamorey of this town, who had both legs cut off by a train near the Middlesex street depot in Lowell, shortly before noon yesterday, died at the St. John hospital in that city yesterday afternoon. Rockwell, with two companions, both from Lowell, was trying to get a train bound for Manchester, when he fell under the wheels of Arthur Trouville, tinner of Lowell, who was with Rockwell, saw the accident and notified a traffic officer.

Young Rockwell served several years in the navy and was once in command of a gun crew that made a navy record. Since the death of his father he has not made Manchester his home. His mother, however, has lived with her brother, Ezra B. Lamorey, at 25 Linden street, Manchester, until within a few weeks when she went to Ayers Cliff, P. O. Jesse Lamorey, well known as a coach of the Manchester high school football team, is a cousin of the unfortunate young man and the family have many other relatives in that city.

Frank Colton of the Junction has accepted a position with J. P. Segrave, P. A. Paymaster A. Graham Hezard, U. S. N., has been detached from the Charleston navy yard, and ordered to duty aboard the U. S. S. Washington at the local yard.

Alfred Olsen, who recently resided at Locke's Cove, has resigned his position on the navy yard, and left today for Manchester, N. H., where he will join his family.

The Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will hold memorial services on Sunday.

The following item is taken from today's Manchester Union:

Mrs. Emily C. Bucklin widow of Jas. Bucklin died Wednesday morning at the home of her son, Harry Bucklin at Hooksett at the age of 93 years. She was born at Enfield and had resided at Hooksett three years.

Mrs. Bucklin will be well remembered by the older residents of Manchester, particularly by Janeville people for her home was in that section for many years. Her husband was for thirteen years a member of the Manchester police force from 1873 until 1886 and there were only two patrolmen on the force now who were associated with him, Patrolmen Beane and Dink.

She is survived by three sons, Harry Bucklin of Hooksett with whom she lived at the time of her death; Charles H. Bucklin of Haverhill, Mass.; and Bert Bucklin of Kittery, Me.; two brothers, W. Harrison Leavitt and Frank Leavitt, both of Enfield; and several grandchildren, one of whom is Mrs. Henry B. Beard of Manchester.

The funeral will take place from the Bethel Advent church, Amherst street, Manchester, Friday at 9 a. m. Robert A. Crenier of Somerville, Mass., is the guest of Mrs. Jacob Danks of government street for a few days.

The Ladies' Circle met this afternoon with Mrs. Charles Traflet of Loda Lane.

Miss Helen Thomas of Government street passed Wednesday with friends at Kittery Point.

Mrs. Claude Colby and children have returned to their home in North Kittery after visiting Mrs. Ralph Seaward of Kittery Point.

ERROR FOUND IN THE RETURNS FROM KITTERY

Gives Roberts Lead for Sheriff in York County.

ERROR FOUND

By the latest returns Haven A. Roberts of Sanford is the nominee for sheriff on the Republican ticket in York county, having apparently received a plurality of the votes in Monday's primaries. He now appears in lead Frank M. Irving of North Kennebunkport by 15 votes, his vote being 1,001 and Irving's 1,550.

Mr. Roberts was first given a lead of 17 in the returns telephoned in from the various towns. Then an error was discovered in the telephone report from Saco, which favored Mr. Irving by 19 votes and he went two ahead of Roberts, but the margin was so close that it was deemed best not to award the nomination to either until a further investigation of the vote could be made.

Mr. Roberts has since Monday telephoned every town in York county and consulted the town clerks on the official returns. In every instance but that of Kittery he found the returns the same as published, (with Saco corrected, giving Irving a lead of two). In Kittery he found his vote should have been returned 142 instead of 125. It was another case of a mistake in telephoning the figures.

The corrected returns are now as follows:

United States Tire Company Delighted
With Consistent Durability Shown
By Their Product.

The remarkable regularity with which letters have been received recently by the United States Tire Company, commencing their tires for excess mileage received, proves beyond the question of a doubt the truth of Cannon Hall Baker's claim that no other tires could have stood the severe road conditions to which he subjected them in his remarkable trip across the continent.

A letter recently received from Oklahoma states that a "Nobby" Tread on a second-hand Hippomobile which had run 6,000 miles when the owner bought it, gave 22,000 miles more service, and that without a puncture.

Another letter says that the chauffeur of the Governor of Michigan has run more than 12,000 miles on a set of "Nobbys" and feels certain that this set will stand 5,000 more.

"Eleven thousand miles, and still running," says a third.
Nobby Treads are adjusted on a basis of 5,000 miles.

CLASS OF 1916 SAY FAREWELL TO SCHOOL

A glass gift, we took in mind this new situation and sought a means of expression which would be most appropriate to this new educational era and most symbolic of the new things for which the school now stands, something related to vocational training, rather than the old classical departments, and something capable of justifying itself, as to the new departments on the grounds of usefulness. The best expression would seem to be a further step in the same direction, one which would increase the vocational opportunities already offered in the Portsmouth High school. We have observed that in many New England cities courses in printing have been introduced into the High schools with great benefit from a financial as well as from an educational point. It seems to us desirable that the pupils in the Portsmouth High school should have the same advantages, for instance, printing their own school paper and other necessary work of this kind connected with the school. With this in view we have purchased a press of a type suitable for the purpose we have suggested. It has been set up on the first floor of the High school building and put in working order by members of the senior class. For evidence of its practical ability you have only to turn to the programs of this afternoon which are samples of our own printing. Honorable Calvin Page, we, of the class of 1916 are now glad to express in part our appreciation and loyal regard for the Portsmouth High school by presenting to the school this printing press. The acceptance was made by Hon. Calvin Page, chairman of the High school committee who spoke in his usual forcible manner.

The Class Gift

The class of 1916 have taken a new departure from previous classes, by presenting a printing press and a number of fonts of type to be used in the instruction of the printers at the school as well as eventually print the school paper which has become a feature of late years with the students.

Address to Graduates

After the singing of Gounod's Waltz and chorus by the school, the address to the graduates was made by Dr. L. M. Hutton of Smith college.

who took for his theme, "The Educated Person."

Presentation of Medals

The presentation of the much sought for Haven gold medals was made by Charles E. Hodgdon of the High school board, and was as follows:

Sophomore Class—Medals for general excellence in studies during the first two years awarded to Louise Leavitt, Edward John Berkeley, honorable mention, Mildred Anderson Astworth, Isadore Leighton Luce, Alice Rose Miller, Elmer Rand, Frances Isabelle Upham.

Class Ode to 1916

The class ode written by Miss Helen Averell Colburn and sung to music by Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Cotton was as follows:

The day that's now before us is a sleeping stone we need
That leads us o'er the pathway
Through this world of joy and strife.
It represents a store of knowledge
Large though it may seem
It is but small when measured with
The lore of human life.
We hope the inspirations of these Years may spur us on
To find a greater meaning in a future
Yet unknown.
And leads us to a greater knowledge
Of this world beyond
An incentive to efforts nobler than We've shown.

As we look back on days which have so swiftly come and gone
Reflecting on the memories dear of Either work or play
They loom before our eyes in glowing
Visions ever bright
That bring an added hope and cheer
With which to pass the day
But as we see them gleaming with
A calm and softened light
We're over prompted onward with
A sense of harboring fast
Those thoughts of friendship, formed
And now so long the test endured
Impressed upon our memories we Hope to ever last.
Before us lies the future, like a story

yet untold
A lurid scene of varied tones and harmonies we see
But also darkened by a sliver veil which seems to hide
From prying eyes, the phantom griefs and pleasures yet to be
And all so carefully blended in its color that it seems To ever call and tempt us forth to lift the somber veil
To show to us the vision bright and thus our buoyant hopes May reach a wider plane where doubts and fears do not assail.

MUST USE CARE IN SELLING LIQUOR TO THE SOLDIERS

State Excise Board Sends Out
Warning to the Saloon
Keepers.

The state excise board is anxious that no minors now serving with the National Guard be served with liquor and has sent out letters to proprietors of saloons calling their attention to the fact that there are many minors in the national guard, and they must use great care in selling to soldiers, who are now in camp at Concord. The notification has gone to the places outside of Concord as some of the troops may pay a visit to these cities while away from camp on leave.

On Tuesday Chairman Harry W. Keyes and Commissioner Robert Jackson visited the Concord saloons and told the licensees of the danger to which the letter today also calls attention.

The notice follows:

Your attention is called to the fact that the National Guard of New Hampshire has been ordered into camp at Concord. Many of the enlisted men are under 21 years of age and the license law provides that no liquor shall be sold or served to minors. It is of great importance that you and your employees see that all the conditions of your license and the law are strictly enforced.

of Trustees of New Hampshire College.

Another resignation of a New Hampshire college trustee was accepted by the governor and council at Hanover. This makes three changes in the board since the Spending administration came in. Dana J. Brown of Ossipee was the man last to retire. His term would have expired July 17, 1917.

Willis D. McDuffee of Rochester declined a re-appointment, Roy D. Hunter of Charlestown succeeding him. Eugene S. Danell of Greenland was appointed to succeed John W. Prentiss of Alstead. Danell had previously been a trustee but he was displaced to make room for Dwight Hall of Dover last October and reappointed in April. No successor to Brown has been named.

The councillor confirmed Commissioner Frank A. McIntire's appointments of John Wentworth of Hudson and James H. Blodgett of Pittsburg as deputy game wardens.

The resignation of Special Justice Benjamin F. Davis of the Goffstown bench was accepted, yesterday, and the board of medical examiners were granted the use of the senate chamber for examinations, July 26-28 inclusive.

Tilton, June 22.—While returning from this village to his home in East Northfield shortly after noon Wednesday, John Hayes and his housekeeper, Annie Starkworthy, were frightfully injured, when their carriage was struck by the locomotive on the Boston and Montreal express due to leave here at 12:15 p. m., at the Shaker cross-ing, about one and one-half miles from this village. Mr. Hayes is about 70 years of age and a little hard of hearing. They were riding in an open wagon. The occupants were thrown several feet and to one side of the railroad track. The horse was found dead beside a fence some rods away without a scratch on his body. The train was brought to a stop and the injured man and woman taken on board and brought to Laconia, where they were rushed to the Laconia hospital.

An examination showed Mr. Hayes was suffering from bad cuts on the head and several bruises about the body. The housekeeper escaped with several bad cuts and bruises.

RUSSIANS RESUME ADVANCE AFTER TEMPORARY CHECK

London, June 21.—Russians are closing a disorganized Austrian army along the Roumanian frontier and have broken a heavy counter-offensive of the Austrians assisted by the Germans in the Lutsk region. Russian semi-official reports that the Austrian general Planzer's army has been cut in two and is in precipitate retreat. It seems to be borne out by the Russian official statement that the Russians have occupied three towns on the Sereth River, and the admission in the Austrian communication that Russian troops have crossed the Sereth and occupied the towns of Zadova, Stroganetz and Gileka. When the Austrians retired from Czernowitz part of them retreating due south along the Roumanian border and others toward the Carpathians. Their hope was to have time to hold the Russians on the fortified line running from Kutly to Sereth along the rivers Mikhodra and Sereth. But despite the delay caused by the prolonged defence of Czernowitz General Lechitzky threw his reserves upon the heels of the retreating Austrians at such speed that they succeeded in reaching that line simultaneously with them. The result was that General Planzer's force was cut in half midway between Kutly and Sereth at Stroganetz. The Austrians and Germans have sent reinforcements to the southwestern front from the Italian, French and Balkan war zones, as well as from the Pusk and Baranovsk regions. The Germans arrived late at the Lutsk front to relieve the Austrians. General Kaledin is pressing westward to the south of Vladimir Volynsk with the intention of cutting his opponents' communications between Kovel and Lemberg. His advance, if maintained, would enable him to block this line at a point between Vladimir-Volynsk and Sokol, moreover, the extension southward of General Kaledin's eighty-mile front promises a junction with the army operating in the direction of Lemberg from the direction of Brody.

Slav North Army Drives On

Petrograd, June 21.—On the northern flank of General Brusiloff's front the Austrian resistance, considerably stiffened by the arrival of a large number of German reinforcements, succeeded in checking temporarily the Russian drive between Lutsk and Kovel, which, directed against Vladimir-Volynsk, aims at destroying the Austrian communication between Kovel and Lemberg. But in spite of the violent Austro-German counter-attacks, one of which broke through the Russian lines, the latest reports are to the effect that the Russians have again resumed progress in this section, after taking the usual toll of prisoners.

On the southern flank the Austrians have been unable to check even momentarily, the Russian advance toward Kolomoia, and toward the final Dniester fortification of Hattch.

Planzer's Army Cut in Two

General Planzer, the Austrian commander, apparently is paying the penalty for having too long delayed his retirement from Czernowitz and his army, now cut in two, is reported to be in precipitate flight one part along the Roumanian frontier, and the other into the Carpathians. Turning from Czernowitz, General Lechitzky's forces are pressing their flank attack further north and have reached a point on the Zlota Lipa, some miles to the northwest of Czernowitz. Russian military critics consider it unlikely that the Austrians will be able to hold the Zlota Lipa line, but will be forced back on Hattch.

The separate Russian movements are now showing a strongly centralized tendency. There are three converging lines of advance, the common objective of which is Lemberg. The first of these lines is approaching Vladimir-Volynsk, the second Brody, the third Hattch. The capture of any one of these towns would place the Gallician capital in a position of grave danger. The total number of prisoners taken by the Russians is now estimated at 170,000.

Austrian Counter-Attack Crippled

The text of the statement follows: "On several sections of the front occupied by the armies under General Brusiloff the enemy continues to make desperate counter attacks. The enemy offensive began in the vicinity of the village of Voronchinsk northeast of Kishel, seven versts north of the Lutsk-Vladimir-Volynsk road, supported by German troops. Recently transported thither has broken down under our fire.

"According to reports just received our troops after a counter attack in the region of Rogovitch to southeast of the village of Lohatich repulsed the enemy and captured sixteen officers, twelve hundred men and eight machine guns. In this decisive action the clever handling of a Russian rifle battalion, which took the enemy by both flank and front, is particularly mentioned. This battalion, forming part of a crack rifle regiment, not only put the enemy to flight but recaptured the three guns whose loss was announced in yesterday's communication. Moreover, the battalion took three hundred prisoners and three machine guns.

"Further reports of the fighting in the region north of Gduditch, on the Styr, and west of the village of Kold show that we on the seventeenth captured 95 officers, 1137 men, and seventeen machine guns.

"In the region of Okhotnikovo east of Suray, we captured a German aeroplane with pilot and observer.

"In the region of Galvonomka and Vinnyvichik north of Buczacz, on the Stripa, the enemy is offering stubborn resistance.

Italians Gain on Posina

Rome, via London, June 21.—The following report was given out by the War Office today:

"Between the Adige and Asten valleys military actions occurred. At the head of the Posina valley detachments of our Alpine troops in the midst of a heavy storm captured a strong position southwest of Monte Puzos. Engagements on the western slopes of Monte Cengio resulted in favor of our infantry.

"Southwest of Asago, on the night of June 19, the enemy attempted three successive surprise attacks against our positions at Monte Maganab and Oseal. All were repulsed with heavy loss for the enemy.

"North of the Frenzich valley we continued yesterday the difficult advance across rough ground, hindered by the stubborn resistance of the enemy and driving back frequent counter attacks. On the remainder of the front there were no events of importance."

German Blow Near Rheims

Paris, June 21.—A violent attack on the French positions northwest of Rheims was made by the Germans last night at 11:00 No. 108 and in the direction of Berry-au-Bac, according to an official statement issued by the War Office today. The attack was repulsed by the French artillery fire.

A TWICE-TOLD TALE

One of interest to our readers. Good news bears repeating, and when it is confirmed after a long lapse of time, even if we hesitated to believe it at first hearing, we feel secure in accepting its truth now. The following experience of a Portsmouth man is confirmed after four years.

J. W. McMullen, insurance agent, 553 Maplewood Ave., Portsmouth, says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are good. They have been used in my own family for severe pains across the back, lumbago and soreness through the joints and trouble from the kidney secretions and have been found to be just as represented in every way."

The above statement was given on June 17, 1911, and on October 21, 1915, Mr. McMullen said: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills personally and from the results I received, I recommend them highly. I have endorsed this medicine before and I again willingly do so."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. McMullen has twice publicly recommended. Foster-McMillan Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Rev. Mgr. Chidwick was born in New York city in 1863. He was graduated from Manhattan college when he was 20, receiving the A. B. degree; ordained a priest four years later and was made pastor of St. Ambrose's church in New York, in March, 1904, which position he held for five years, when he was named President of St. Joseph's Seminary. He was assigned later to the battleship Maine as chaplain, and was one of the last to leave the ship when she was sinking. His heroic efforts to save others won him national fame. He is also president of the Catholic summer school of America and a trustee of the Catholic Institute for the Blind.

Father Chidwick lectured in this city shortly after the Spanish war.

BOSTON LETTER

With 250 nurses already enrolled the Boston branch of the Red Cross is ready for any emergency, according to Miss Julia Reed, secretary of the corps.

Chairman Elliot Wadsworth of the Metropolitan chapter was assured by Adjutant-General Cole today that he will not need the Red Cross headquarters in Washington are in constant communication with army headquarters, and if there is need of any special activity, chapter officers will be notified, said Mr. Wadsworth. First aid and home nursing courses will be continued through the summer, one thousand persons having already taken the first course and five hundred women the latter.

Secretary George Mulhall of the New England Iron and Hardware Dealers Association told the members of that organization at its annual banquet at Young's hotel that its prosperity, the life of which had not been known since Civil war times, was experienced by wholesale hardware dealers the country over during the past year. General sentiment among the fifty odd members present was that the existing flourishing conditions would continue through 1916 and 1917 at least. Charles B. Adams of the John B. Varick Co., of Manchester, N. H., was re-elected president, and Wilbur B. Ayer of the Belcher & Loomis Co., Providence, R. I., vice president; George J. Mulhall of Boston, clerk.

Governor Samuel W. McCall attended the commencement exercises at Holy Cross College on Tuesday and left at once for Williamstown where he attended the Williams commencement on Wednesday. He returned to Boston late last night. The governor does practically all his touring of the state by automobile and said on his return last night that he was much impressed with the good roads.

DARTMOUTH '16 MEETS FOR LAST TIME IN CHAPEL

GREEN GRADUATES RECEIVE THEIR DIPLOMAS BEFORE HOST OF HONOR GUESTS AND ALUMNI.

Hanover, N. H., June 21.—Today is commencement day at Dartmouth. Before a crowd of guests and alumni in Webster Hall the class of 1916 received diplomas and degrees, and took their place among the alumni of the college. Then came the commencement luncheon in alumni gymnasium and tonight the crowning social event of the week, the commencement ball, also will be in the gymnasium.

The day's events began with prayers in Rollins chapel, the last chapel service for the class of 1916. Following this the graduating class met at the senior fence, along the west side of the campus, and formed an escort for the procession of invited guests, faculty and alumni. Meeting in the faculty room of Parkhurst Hall, the procession was made up of President Ernest Fox Nichols and Gov. Spaulding of New Hampshire, the trustees and guests of the college, the Governor's staff, the faculty in order of seniority and the alumni in order of graduation. After the procession had filed into Webster Hall, the commencement speakers delivered their orations. The first was the valedictorian, Edward C. Kirkland of Bellows Falls, Vt., speaking on "Wheeler's Ideals for the College." Following him was Eugene P. Chase, New Britain, a Cecil Rhodes scholar to Oxford, whose subject was "Ideals in the College Today." Ray Chapman of Sharon, Vt., spoke on "Why Read Shakespeare?" and Edwin L. Denver, who has completed his course in three years, was the next speaker, and his subject, "Newspapers and Public Opinion." The president and faculty then conferred the degrees, both those in course to the seniors and honorary degrees to distinguished men.

The procession then reformed under the leadership of Chester A. Pridith of Detroit, the class marshal, and marched to alumni gymnasium to the commencement luncheon. The commencement ball is under the direction of Eliot A. Shaw of Waterbury, Mass. Alumni gymnasium has been turned in to a palm garden for this dance by Penn of Boston, and music will be furnished by Nevil's Regimental band of Concord, N. H. With the conclusion of this dance, comes the end of Dartmouth's 147th commencement.

The money which has carried on the work for the past eight months is now nearly used up and it is earnestly hoped that more contributions will be sent to the treasurer, Mrs. W. D. Walker, 116 Middle Street.

ENTENTE ALLIES WORKING AGAINST MEXICAN-U. S. WAR.

Washington, June 21.—Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon Gen. Carranza by representatives of European powers to prevent him from forcing a break with the United States. Indirect reports reaching the state department today told of these efforts and said there was possibility they would be successful.

World Counteract German Influence. Agencies of the entente allies are understood to be active for peace, particularly because they believe German influence has sought to inflame the Mexican government against the United States with a view to preventing this country from gathering in trade formerly controlled by Germany in Mexico, South and Central America.

It is pointed out that Carranza might avoid war by calling for an international commission to discuss the border situation, as provided for in the treaty of 1818. So far, however, no suggestion for such a step has come from Mexico.

A definite statement has been received that Carranza is doing all in his power at this time to protect Americans in Mexico from attack by the populace. He is said to have given Special Agent Rodgers in Mexico City all the aid in his power in arranging for trains to carry American refugees from the Interior to Vera Cruz. In some quarters here this was construed as evidence that he is not bent upon provoking hostilities.

have participated in the San Benito raid.

Anleto Escobar, bandit leader, has been made a colonel in the Carranza army and given command of a detachment that will defend the Matamoros plaza in the event of hostilities. It was reported on apparently reliable authority today.

Department of Justice Drops El Paso Charges.

Washington, June 21.—Chief of the department of Justice's bureau of investigation, today telegraphed his El Paso agent to drop charges against Frederick Grisse, a German banker of Mexico City, detained there yesterday for alleged attempts to violate American neutrality. Investigation convinced officials here there had been no violations.

Horse Dealers Give U. S. "First Crack" on Sales.

Chicago, June 21.—Thousands of horses originally intended for sale to European armies were brought out for inspection by United States army officers at local markets today. The 1st Illinois cavalry took options on nearly 1000 of them. Horse dealers here determined today to give the United States "first crack" at all horses, regardless of European contracts.

10,000 N. Y. Cops Ready
New York, June 21.—Ten thousand New York policemen—trained in handling of machine guns, expert marksmen, students of cam sanitation, and with some knowledge of trench digging, are available for service against Mexico, according to Acting Police Commissioner Godley today.

CAN REACH ANY LAND

The sending of money or goods to the relief agencies of any of the warring countries is no longer a problem. "I don't know how to reach them," can no longer serve as an excuse. A sort of central clearing house has been established in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America through which any organization or country can be reached.

The Federal Council prefers to have contributions sent direct to the relief fund the giver chooses, but the result of an appeal in behalf of all the relief funds issued by this organization a month ago was the receipt of many checks. Ex-President Taft, Judge Alton B. Parker, Seth Low and others endorsed and emphasized the appeal, and the Federal Council found itself forced to establish a new department.

"We will gladly give information," said Dr. Charles S. Macfarland, General Secretary of the Council, "as to the needs of any land and the most direct means of relieving them. While we have not deemed it advisable to add another fund to the excellent organizations in existence, we are willing upon request to receive and distribute funds, whenever possible through the existing organizations. Contributions should be addressed to the Federal Council War Relief Fund, 165 East 22nd Street, New York City, and checks should be made payable to the 'War Relief Fund.'"

At a conference of the representatives of the outstanding war relief organizations in the rooms of the Federal Council on June 6, it was unanimously voted that the Council should send out another appeal. This was done last week, and it was not confined to the 37,742,508 communicants of the churches which compose the Federal Council, but was addressed to the public as a whole through the churches. The results are already flowing in, but the Council has suggested that Citizenship Sunday, July 2, would be an appropriate time for the initial presentation of this new message in the churches and for either the beginning or reemphasizing of the movement.

SEC. DANIELS GIVES ADVICE TO EDITORS

NAVY HEAD TELLS HOW TO HANDLE MEXICAN SITUATION IN ADDRESS TO NEWS PAPERMEN.

New York, June 21.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels, speaking before the National Editorial Association today, pointed out the duty of newspapers in the present crisis and declared that the country will unite in standing behind President Wilson if a break comes.

"There is no room for politics in questions touching our national honor and the safety of America," Daniels declared. "In the war with Spain, though the parties were sharply divided and though certain papers vilified President McKinley for being slow to plunge this country into war, when the supreme crisis came this nation stood united."

"Today when delicate and difficult conditions confront us and dark clouds lie threatening and low on the horizon, the newspaper men and the entire population of the country regardless of politics should stand for America first, last and always."

"One of our greatest admirals was Admiral Decatur and he expressed the feeling of America today when he said 'In our foreign relations may our country always be right, but right or wrong our country always.'"

"Today, while Europe writhes in blood, and to the southward conditions prevail that make us pause and make brave men pray that the worst may not come, it is the sacred duty of newspapers that they print nothing which may precipitate the worst conditions imaginable. And as in the day of the Spanish war, when America upheld the hands of President McKinley, so will our country uphold the hands of the patient man who speaks for America today."

We are carrying a load of Fifteen Dollar Suits. These suits are "loaded" with "class," too. The patterns and models give them the look of much higher priced ones. Young men will find lots of extremely smart styles in the popular pinch-back models among them. Blues and grays are the "sellers," blue flannel suits being especially good form among good dressers this season. Blue serges if you prefer serge to flannel. Grays in plaids, checks, mixtures and plain flannel.
